

SIEGER THE TOUGHEST PROPOSITION GANS EVER MET, SAYS CHARLEY WHITE.

NO TALK YET FROM JOHNSON'S CAMP.

American Leaguer's Presence In Town Starts Rumors, but Nothing Serious Is Heard.

The American League officials who arrived in this city a couple of days ago have been reinforced by one of the "angels" of the organization, Frank W. Angus, holder of the Detroit franchise. The American Leaguers are as silent as so many sphinxes regarding their visit to this city and in consequence of that silence the public has been left in the dark.

One says that Johnson has brought his campstools here for the purpose of showing them the grounds he has picked out in the city for his team. A story in circulation, too, is that the Columbia University faculty is considering an offer made by Johnson for South Field, but this has been denied later by the university. In short, that proposition has been made to them, but say they are not considering it.

W. W. Kerr, former owner of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, is said to be in conference with Johnson regarding the purchase of the Baltimore franchise to be transferred to Pittsburg, but this cannot be confirmed.

RACING NOTES.

Lucien Lyne, the celebrated jockey, wires that he has decided to remain at Benning and ride the season out there, when he will come at once to Kentucky and spend the holidays at his home, to farm, near Lexington, which belongs to his father, in Stafford C. Lyne. He will remain there until the middle of January, when he will sail for England to begin to fulfill his English contract with J. R. & F. P. Keene. This acts to rest the idle rumors that Lyne would ride

Senator J. P. O'Brien and Charles Head Smith were among the visitors at Lakeside track yesterday. Arnold & Co. shipped the best of their horses to California last night.

Manager A. Tillis, of the Little Horn Jockey Club, has been spending the last few days in Memphis attending to business matters. When asked regarding the probability of a race meeting being held at the Little Horn track, Tillis said the proposition was up to the politicians. He said he had been invited to attend the annual meeting if the authorities persist in refusing to permit pool-rooms to run in the city for a year or two, but he was following the route of safety at Clinton Park.

Sheridan Clark, secretary of the Crescent City Jockey Club, said he was not sure of the outcome. He reports the prospects for good racing this winter at New Orleans as of the best. Superior to any previous outlook in the history of the club.

The stewards called W. C. Daly into the stand after the fourth race for an explanation as to why he had not been in the clubhouse. Daly said he had a chair load. The boy said his instructions were to get the horses out of the paddock on the route, and he was endeavoring to do just like the stretch run. The jockey duly corroborated this statement and the stewards took the case under consideration.

Myo Rayner, who aided in the handling of the R. Keesee, a brilliant racing stallion in 1893, tried to get away from the city.

Yesterday by drinking laudanum, Rayner is serving a term at the prison for vagrancy. Dr. H. B. Young had just finished lancing Rayner's arm when Rayner seized the bottle of poison and raised it to his lips. The physician knocked it from his hand. Rayner had been discharging

At a meeting of the executive committee of the new Memphis Jockey Club, M. N. MacFarland, secretary, was authorized to arrange the program for the racing season at Ole Miss. The park so that nothing less than $100 purses would be offered.

Kenny Frank's auto-pool move was so impressive that the attendance of novices at the business. The boy could not pull the horse up until he struck the turn, and he moved the last of the race, and he was not the least anxious for the railbirds and the result bore out the judgment.

Jim Buck had worked a mile in 1:42 and his people backed him for good money.

Witful had never won a race before yesterday, but her work of Wednesday, a mile in 1:40½, was a record for the colt. The money if she ran up to her trial.

"Virginia" Bradley's horses attached yesterday by the United States Sheriff because, he alleged, Bradley had not settled a trainer's bill for that amount, the thoroughbreds were released.

Jones, the apprentice boy who rode True Blue to victory, is a small youngster weighing avenge-two pounds. He was so little, that he could not reach to the buckle on the girth to release the saddle.

Secretary Shaw has issued an order forbidding any Treasury employees to visit the race-track. Any one found breaking this order is threatened with dismissal. Now the clerks have employed a commissioner to take their bets out to the track whenever they have a "good thing."

The line of bookmaking was still further reduced by several from the game. The majority of them are big losers.

Not in a long time has Gans been compelled to work so hard to beat an opponent. He finally dropped Sieger to the floor with a smash on the jaw which rendered him unfit to continue.

Sieler took the worst punishment from Gans during the fourteen rounds that any fighter has accepted since pug was known to this vicinity.

From the moment the bell rang for the first round, Gans was on top. Sieger had been floored in the fourth round, Sieger did not have a chance of beating the clever colored boxer. He simply stood up and accepted the terrific grueling which Gans gave him, with the hope that he might be able to land a lucky right-hand swing, many of which aimed for Gans's jaw.

When Sieger each other up. In the third round Gans sailed into Sieger and had him stagger with the left jab to the face and right swings on the jaw. These blows seemed to take all the steam out of Sieger, for he weakened fast after that and was merely a punching bag for who kept coming and sending in jab after jab to his face and right and left swings on his jaw until he became red punching.

In the ten rounds that Gans and Sieger fought, but each time the game Hoboken man got on his feet, although he was bleeding from the nose and being counted out. In the eleventh round Gans landed fourteen times on Sieger's jaw, but was still unable to put him down. Although Sieger was floored three times.

OF THE PUGILISTS.

Corbett and McGovern will fight their first bout three weeks before the day of their marriage when they will go straight to the coast to get into condition for the encounter. "Corbett" has two fights on already and expects to fight another battle in Chicago. McGovern has no match in sight as yet, but his manager expects to arrange one for him next week to be decided in Philadelphia the first week in December. His opponent in that bout will either be Sammy Smith, of Philadelphia, or Billy Maynard, of this city.

Aceful, considered by racing experts the star two-year-old of the American turf for this year, is on his way to England, where next season he will carry the colors of his owners, Messrs. J. & Whitney, in many rich stakes, the principal one being the English Derby. He is an American-bred horse, the line's steamship Minnetonka. With the crack colt as shipmate is Silphirth, who is expected to be a first-class performer. The pair will arrive in England, used exclusively to work with Aceful. The ship's arrival, which will be in about ten days, will be taken to Mr. Whitney's Heath House and be placed in the hands of the English trainer, Mr. abroad, John Huggins. In the early spring the American colt will be prepared to start in the English Derby.

Besides the English Derby, Aceful has been nominated for the St. Leger, the Jockey Club and the Princess of Wales Stakes.

Columbia and Amherst will meet at the Polo Grounds to-day in the first game ever played between those two teams.

The Columbia team is in bad condition still and will miss Shaw, the right half back, who, it is thought, should have been injured during the recent training on the Long Island, the varsity fullback, will be put in at Shaw's place at guard. He is a heavy enough man, weighing close to 185 pounds, but he has had no experience at rush-line playing.

Thorpe will be fairly replaced by Jenks, the old Hamilton College player. The latter has been playing on the scrub all the season. De Sallier will play end.
